Hi Karen – Rich Neville from Meadville should be contacting you shortly regarding the address request – a lot of RRs and P.O. Boxes, but he has some information that will be helpful in locating the homes. It turns out that there are 19 affected homeowners, but only 18 water supplies, so you should have all the analytical data at this point in time. I would wait to hear back from Scott concerning distribution of the analytical data. There are a lot of legal complexities surrounding this case as I am sure you are aware. Thanks – Seth.

Not a problem Thanks! I need to call Craig today too..about another case! I sent a note to Scott this morning, but do you know any problem with sharing the data you sent yesterday with ATSDR-? They are located in our Superfund Technical Support group- toxicologists.

They have also been asked to talk with the residents about what the water quality means for health concerns.

No problem - I'll try to track down all the information you need tomorrow since you have some flexibility. If the addresses are not included along with the analytical data, I may not have them, but I am sure someone in the NWRO will be able to help me assemble that information as their staff have made a number of field visits to the homeowners. I've indicated which addresses are provided along with the analytical data summaries in your list below and also which home well had biogenic methane - apparently that is not the reason for the discrepancy.

Hi Karen,

I am happy to hear that the information I sent thus far has been beneficial. I am not in the office today, but Gene Pine may be able to assist you and I have cc'd him on this email. The number of homeowners involved that sticks in my head is 19, but I am fairly new to the case and I know at least one of the home wells has biogenic, not thermogenic, methane, and that is possibly the reason for the discrepancy. If you provide Gene with the names and addresses I sent you yesterday, he can cross-reference it with the Cabot report I have on my desk and figure out which homeowner may be missing. Once he figures that out, he can provide you with a name and address. When I get in tomorrow I will look for any lab data summaries I might have for the homeowner that was not included. I apologize, as I thought I was looking in the correct location for all of the analytical data I had in my possession. If you need anything besides a name and address before tomorrow morning, please call my cell at Ex. 6 - Personal Privacy and I will figure out a way we can get it to you before COB today. Thanks - Seth.

Seth- We have conflicting numbers of homes included. One letter says 18 another says 19....do you have the names and addresses of all the residences included in the order? Thanks for all the information you've already sent!!!!
